"Material Culture and Narratives of the Medieval Past"

Maureen C. Miller is Professor of History at the University of California, Berkeley and presently First-Vice President of the Medieval Academy of America. She is a historian of medieval Europe with a particular interest in Italy. Since earning her Ph.D. in 1989 from Harvard University, she has taught at Hamilton College and George Mason University before joining the UC system. The author of three prize-winning monographs, she has utilized various forms of material culture—surviving rural churches, ecclesiastical and secular palaces, as well as liturgical vestments—to illuminate changes in the western Church and the culture of the secular clergy across the Middle Ages.
