

Scales of Slavdom: Race and Geography in Yugoslav Communism, 1941-48

Professor James Robertson, UC Irvine

This talk excavates the conceptual foundations of communist pan-Slavism, situating the ideology in the longer intellectual history of supranational thought in the lands of Yugoslavia. It draws out and interrogates the ways this racial imaginary stood in tension with alternative projects of political community in South East Europe.

April 15, 2026 ✦ 5pm ✦ Bunche 6275

Meyer and Renee Luskin
Department of History

UCLA Center for European and Russian Studies

UCLA European History Colloquium